

Anthro Talks Rutgers

Dr Janet Monge (Upenn)

Hemlock, Cholera and Marijuana: Getting it all Wrong in Forensic Anthropology

(co-sponsored by the Center for Human Evolutionary Studies)

Case studies of prehistoric, historic and modern errors in the reconstruction of events surrounding the death of 11 people. From the ancient Middle East to the suburbs of Philadelphia, history has painted a very different picture of the very real events of human violence against other humans. Forensic anthropologists get it right (and wrong sometimes) telling the stories from the very real bones left behind.

Friday 9 March 2018

3.00-4.30 PM

RAB 001

Douglass Campus

New Brunswick