

Prelim-Islands and Lost Continents

1.5 credits

Ruth Adams Building 003 (RAB-003),
Douglass/Cook Campus

5.40–8.40 pm, Wednesday (Starting March 9th)

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Sea level changes. The archaeology of islands and lost continents is a survey of how people moved in prehistory between islands (The Pacific Polynesia, the Mediterranean and Caribbean Seas), that also goes into the reconstruction of the places now covered by water: the lands that connected Indonesia (Sunda), Great Britain to Europe (Doggerland), and Russia to Alaska (Beringia). An island has constraints, it has limited supplies of resources; an island is a discrete space; bounded by a water barrier that makes passage to, and from, difficult. Archaeology has to explain human habitation on islands in relation to developments on the mainland, or to other islands. In the same fashion, places that are now separated, were once part of a continuous landscape. Islands and Lost Continents helps us to look at the past in light of those constraints, inaccessibility, and visibility. What technology brought people to the islands? How did they live there? What was their impact on their ecosystem? Could they stay? What changed?

To address the above, the course will first survey the archaeology of islands and human dispersal in the past, starting with the Pleistocene, and going from region to region, more or less in order of settlement.

Archaeological practise essentially compares two places with each other, to assess their commonality and perhaps their common origin, or their autochthonous development. Islands and Lost Continents is about a past dominated by the sea, that is perhaps also our future.

GRADING AND ASSESSMENT

Grades

- Assignments: 5
- Quizzes: 2
- Extra credit: 5%–1000 word essay

Assessment

In-class quizzes will be a feature of every class, they will be on the previous week's reading and lecture (lecture slides will be made available on Canvas).

For extra-credit, you may write a short essay, 1000 word minimum, on a topic or theme relevant to the course.

A note on absence in times of COVID-19

It is in everyone's best interests that if you have symptoms or feel ill in general, that you self-isolate and do not 'power' through to class. Alternative assignments will be made for people who could not attend the lesson. The main point is that classes can only be held in person if everyone takes sensible precautions. If the absence lasts longer than a week, please contact the Dean of Students:

<http://deanofstudents.rutgers.edu/>

Mask Requirement

Masks must be worn by all persons on campus when in the presence of others (within six feet) and in buildings in non-private enclosed settings (e.g., common workspaces, workstations, meeting rooms, classrooms, etc.). Masks must be worn during class meetings; any student not wearing a mask will be asked to leave.

Masks should conform to CDC guidelines and should completely cover the nose and mouth:

<https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/prevent-getting-sick/about-face-coverings.html>

Each day before you arrive on campus or leave your residence hall, you must complete the brief survey on the My Campus Pass symptom checker self-screening app.

COURSE POLICIES

Academic Integrity

All students must strictly adhere to the Rutgers Academic Integrity Policy, which identifies and defines violations including cheating, fabrication, facilitating academic dishonesty, plagiarism, and denying others access to information or material. Full definitions of each of these violations, as well as the consequences of violating the Academic Integrity Policy, are available as part of the student handbook. For details see:
